PRIME RIB MEAL

Held on March 3rd. We served 124 meals, and hope everyone enjoyed it. We want to thank all who helped set up, serve, and take down. Special thanks to Ed O’Neal for furnishing the meat slicer. It made a much easier job of slicing the beef and with portion size. If we missed thanking anyone personally, we say “THANKS - JOB WELL DONE”. The net profit to the Social Club fund was $213.75.

OF INTEREST....DAY TRIPPING

Off to Tarpon Springs and the sponge docks. Have you ever been there, other than to eat? So many great Greek and seafood restaurants to choose from. A favorite Greek restaurant of ours is Hella’s, right smack dab in the middle of Dodecanese Boulevard, at the sponge docks. If you are eating at Hella’s, park out back and they will validate your parking ticket for the day. Further down Dodecanese is Rusty Bellies, seafood restaurant, and they also have their own parking lot.

You can walk the streets of the sponge docks for lots of shopping opportunities. Many souvenir shops line the streets where you can pick up sponges, seashells and knick-knacks. There is also a flag shop, spice shop, candy shop, cigar shop, fudge shop, dress shops and lots more. Or, take a boat trip or a half-day fishing adventure. Make sure to hit the sponge museum for a history of Tarpon Springs and the sponge industry. Do you have a loofah in your shower? An interesting fact is that that the loofah is not a sponge at all but is actually a dried gourd.

Looking for antiques or “shabby-chic”? Then you want to head to downtown Tarpon Springs to Tarpon Avenue. A quaint little place with several shops to visit and look around. Or, head out to Howard Park or Sunset Park for an afternoon at the beach. If it is December or January you may find manatee swimming at the city park lake just a couple of blocks west of Alt. 19.

We arrived at the sponge docks for lunch around 1:00 pm on a Wednesday and had about 20 minutes wait to get a table at Rusty Bellies. No problem, we walked the short block to visit a few shops in the meantime and they called our cell phone when our table was ready. I was told by our tablemates that the free hushpuppies were wonderful, and the blackened shrimp skewers were the best ever. After lunch, we made a quick walk to the leather shop that was halfway down the sponge docks. Then we were off to scour the antique shops for bargains before calling it an afternoon.

Just a twenty minute drive makes for a grand adventure where you can see and experience new things every time you go back.

Get out and explore! We’ll be looking for you on our next adventure.

One puff can lead to an unhealthy habit

The best way to quit smoking is never to start—a cliché borne out by a recent post on the Science News website. An analysis of survey data involving more than 215,000 participants, conducted by Queen Mary University of London, found that 61 percent of people who try one cigarette become daily smokers, at least temporarily.

As lead researcher Peter Hajek says, “In the development of any addictive behavior, the move from experimentation to daily practice is an important landmark, as it implies that a recreational activity is turning into a compulsive need. We’ve found that the conversion rate from ‘first time smoker’ to ‘daily smoker’ is surprisingly high, which helps confirm the importance of preventing cigarette experimentation in the first place.”

The advice stands—to avoid getting hooked, don’t light up in the first place.

Cut calories and time with these food prep tips

Trying to lose weight? You can save time and cut calories with just a few simple tactics. Try these, from the Health.com website:

- Chop lots of vegetables. Don’t prepare just a few vegetables for one meal. Chop enough to last for several days, so they’ll be available and you won’t feel tempted to skip them because you don’t feel like cutting more.

- Stock up on protein. Cook two or more chicken breasts at once, or hard-boil a half-dozen eggs instead of just one or two. Keep them on hand so you’ll always have a quick source of protein.

- Use storage containers wisely. Keep leftovers in small, meal-size containers instead of one large bag or bowl. You’ll find it easier to warm up or thaw out one or two meals at a time than dealing with half a frozen chicken.

- Buy canned foods. Staples like canned tuna and beans have a long shelf life and can help you prepare a nutritious meal quickly and easily. Check labels to avoid excess sodium, sugar, and other unnecessary additives.

- Measure precisely. Control serving sizes by keeping some measuring cups handy. You’ll be better able to prepare just the right amount of vegetables, beans, starches, and other foods if you measure them accurately, instead of just guessing at the right amount.

Don't fall prey to road rage

An anyone who commutes to and from work knows how easily traffic can turn into an exercise in frustration. As tempting as it is to retaliate for rude driving, don't make a bad situation worse. Follow these safety rules:

- Don't escalate aggression. That means don't tailgate a driver who tailgated you first or flip the bird to a rude driver. Responding to the road bullies may only increase hostilities.
- Don't make eye contact. You really just want to let a driver know that he or she's been driving like an idiot, so as you pass the car, you give the driver a look that lets her know you're not happy. Remember that you don't know a thing about that driver or what frame of mind he or she's in. Don't risk a confrontation.
- If you're being followed by a hostile driver, don't go home. Drive instead to a public place like a gas station or restaurant. Better yet, head to a police station if one is nearby. If you have a cell phone, call the police and report the driver.
- Never get out of your car. A confrontation at a stoplight is not worth risking violence. The other driver may have some kind of weapon. If the driver gets out of the car, lock your doors and close your window. If you can drive away, do so. If you have a cell phone, call the police.
- Follow the golden rule. The best defense against road rage is to drive as you would have others drive.

Scientists track thoughts through the brain

How does a thought travel through the brain? If you've ever wondered that, neuroscientists think they have the answer, as reported in an article on the Sci-News website.

A team of researchers at the University of California-Berkeley recorded the electrical activity of neurons from the surface of the brain in response to a simple task like repeating a word. They found that the brain's visual and auditory cortexes were first to react to the word, and then the prefrontal cortex interprets it and supplies its meaning. The prefrontal cortex then coordinates all the other areas of the brain involved in the response.

For a harder task, such as supplying the antonym of a word, the brain takes several seconds to reply, with the prefrontal cortex using other areas of the brain like memory networks.

The researchers noted that the brain appears to prepare its motor areas to respond very quickly—even before it knows what the response will be—possibly explaining why people sometimes speak before they think.

Scientists turning CO2 into plastic

Excess CO2 in the atmosphere contributes to climate change, but removing it isn't an easy proposition. A group of scientists is working on one solution—converting CO2 into plastic.

The Science Alert website reports that researchers at the University of Toronto are using X-ray spectroscopy and computer modeling techniques to create a carbon dioxide reduction reaction, which can convert CO2 into other chemicals after being hit with an electrical current. Using copper as a catalyst, they can create ethylene, a primary component in plastic.

Although plastic is a problem for the environment, this technique could reduce the need to produce plastic using fossil fuels, which could turn out to be a net gain for the Earth's climate.

The golf lesson

A man was taking his first golf lesson from a well-respected pro.

Every time the instructor offered advice on how the man could correct or improve his swing, the man countered with a differing opinion and tried another technique. This went on throughout the duration of the lesson.

The instructor remained gracious and encouraged the man to try out his own theories. With each failed attempt the instructor would ask the man what he thought went wrong and how it could be fixed. The man always had an answer and continued to lead his own lesson.

When the lesson was finished, the man thanked the pro, and scheduled another lesson for the following week. "This was very helpful," the man said before he walked away.

Another golfer who witnessed the lesson approached the instructor and said, "I don't get it. You gave that guy solid advice, but he disregarded everything you said."

"Oh, he didn't want my advice," the instructor replied. "He wanted my agreement."

You're never perfectly safe. No human being on Earth ever is or ever was. To live is to risk your life, your heart, everything.

—Rick Yancey

The waters on Mars: Where did they go?

The surface of Mars was once covered in an ocean 100 meters deep, but most of that water has disappeared. What happened? NASA now believes it knows the answer: dust storms.

According to the Science News website, researchers studying more than a decade of satellite imagery have deduced that the massive dust storms of the red planet, which can engulf Mars for months at a time, are responsible for the water loss.

Water vapor was detected almost 80 kilometers above Mars' surface during a massive storm in 2006-2007, rising on convection currents similar to those found on Earth. At that altitude, ultraviolet rays from the sun can break down the chemical bonds holding hydrogen and oxygen atoms together, allowing the lightweight hydrogen to escape into outer space.

The same phenomenon happens on earth, NASA scientists say, but it's not an issue because of the amount of water we have on our planet.

This substance may revolutionize solar power

Solar power is expanding at a breakneck pace thanks to breakthroughs in a crystalline material called perovskite. Perovskites can darken windows on sunny days and clear them on cloudy ones. Now scientists are using them to generate electricity.

Perovskites are a combination of elements with a specific crystalline structure. According to the AAAS website, solar panels made of perovskites are almost as efficient at transforming sunlight into electricity as the best modern solar panels. The best perovskite panels can convert 22 percent of sunlight energy into power, compared with 25 percent produced by standard silicon panels—and the building materials for perovskite are cheaper than those for today's solar cells, making them a prime candidate for smart windows that can also act as solar panels.

We are at the very beginning of time for the human race. It is not unreasonable that we grapple with problems. But there are tens of thousands of years in the future. Our responsibility is to do what we can, learn what we can, improve the solutions, and pass them on.

"...I am so happy with my new windows...I'd like to commend your work crew. Earbie and Larry were fantastic! I couldn't believe the clean-up EVERYDAY! The whole job took just a week even with all the rain delays. I would and WILL highly recommend your company to my friends and neighbors. Of course I won't need to say a word - the house is doing all the talking! Thank you so much for my beautiful new house."

Carol Zapiecki, Clearwater, FL

"Just a short note to express my appreciation for the work done on my mobile home. The crews that worked here...were gentlemen at all times, efficient, knowledgeable and prompt. You can be sure if I run into anybody who needs your type of work, I will surely recommend your company. It has been a very satisfying experience!"

The mask of kindness

There once lived a man who was disliked by everyone in his village because of his surly demeanor and foul temper. He was known to mumble and grumble unpleasantries to passersby and therefore had no friends. He lived alone, with the only knocks at his door coming from the rocks thrown at his cottage by the children of the village.

One day after his kitchen window was smashed by a rotten gourd, and the man visited the village elder to complain about his miseries as well as the ill treatment he felt he was subjected to by the other villagers. He demanded that something be done.

“I have a solution for your problems,” the elder said, and he disappeared into an adjoining room where he could be heard rummaging through a great many things.

He returned holding a mask of a smiling face. “What I’m about to share with you will have the power to transform your life,” the elder said.

“The only thing that needs transforming is my broken window!” the man sneered.

The elder let out a heavy sigh. “As I was saying, this mask will not only transform your life, but it will correct any grievances you might have. Though, I must warn you,” he continued, “to wear this mask carries a great responsibility, an obligation to speak kind words, think kind thoughts, and perform random acts of kindness. Can you agree to uphold this edict?”

The man grudgingly agreed, reminding the elder he was owed a new window before he put on the mask and began the walk back to his home. Along the way the people he encountered greeted him with a wave or a smile. Occasionally someone inquired about his day. Because of the mask, he felt inspired to answer with a positive remark and this led to a pleasant conversation with a neighbor who noticed the man’s broken window and offered to fix it.

As the days and weeks passed the man grew more grateful and astonished by the effect the mask had on him. Because of the mask, the man never let a stranger pass him by without expressing a kind thought; he sought out opportunities to help others; and now had friends. For the first time ever, he was happy. The mask had transformed his life.

One day there was a knock on the man’s door. It was the elder, who’d come to take back the mask.

“But without this mask I will lose the ability to smile and show kindness,” the man objected.

“The mask didn’t make you kind,” the elder said. “The mask simply revealed to you all of the possibilities that exist when you are kind.”

Start thinking green this spring

Most of us can do a lot better when it comes to being ecofriendly. Here are two areas where we can improve upon our good intentions while we lessen our negative impact on the environment:

- Recycling. It's great if you always throw your empty soda cans and water bottles in the recycle bin, but are there other items you are overlooking? If your municipality has a recycling program they probably have a set of guidelines posted online that explains what they accept and how you should prepare those items for disposal. Even though that peanut butter jar is marked as being recyclable, it might be considered garbage if traces of peanut butter are still in it. Find out what you need to know and make a commitment to recycle as much as possible, properly.

- The brown bag lunch. Embrace sustainability when you take your lunch to work by eliminating the amount of disposable products you use. Carry your lunch in a cloth sack, bento box, or small basket. Pack food in glass, metal, or some other kind of reusable containers. Swap out paper napkins with cloth napkins, and plastic straws with metal ones. Consider keeping a coffee mug and set of flatware at your desk in an effort to generate less waste.

A broadband of conservation

In 1989, attorney and activist Susan Tixier mobilized a group of “mature” women on a hike through Utah’s Grand Staircase-Escalante. Most of them were already involved in wilderness preservation efforts, but their goal was to discuss conservation issues surrounding many of the U.S. national monuments and make sure that the voices of older Americans were represented in that conversation.

A member of a passing group of hikers saw them and said, “What a bunch of great old broads!”

On that day, Tixier and her colleagues decided to officially call themselves “Great Old Broads for Wilderness.” Since then they’ve grown their membership to 8,000 across 38 “Broadbands” nationwide.

The group advocates for issues affecting the environment and wilderness protection causes. Their ranks include “Young Broads,” and men of all ages, “Bros.” They host “Broadwalks” where they dedicate a day of stewardship to an area, address conservation issues there, and spend time hiking and exploring.

Visit GreatOldBroads.org to learn more about the Broadbands and the work they are doing.

National Humor Month. Laughter truly is the best medicine, so why not strengthen your funny bone? Visit HumorMonth.com to find projects and resources that will help bring the laughter.

National Poetry Month. Reading a poem each day is one of the 30 ways the Academy of American Poets suggests you celebrate poetry this month. To learn more, visit Poets.org.

National Library Week, April 8-14. If you haven't been to your local library in a while, you're missing out on all of the free yet valuable resources they provide to your community. Visit a branch this week to learn all of the ways "Libraries Lead," which is the theme of this year's campaign.

Earth Day, April 22. Since 1970, people around the world have focused on issues that affect our planet. The theme of this year's campaign is "End Plastic Pollution." Go to Earth-Day.org to find out how you can be an environmental steward.

Burn and extinguish candles safely

Whether you enjoy candles for a romantic dinner or holiday celebration, you should handle them carefully. The National Candle Association says to properly put out a candle's flame, hold your finger in front of the flame and blow at it. The air will flow around the finger and extinguish the candle from both sides, preventing hot wax from splattering.

Other tips for candle keeping and use:

- Never leave a burning candle unattended.
- Keep lighted candles out of the reach of children and pets.
- Keep burning candles away from combustible materials like drapes.
- Store candles in a cool, dark, dry place.
- Before using, light and extinguish the candles so they burn better.
- Avoid drafts to prevent rapid, uneven burning or excessive dripping.
- Keep wicks trimmed to one-half inch.
- To remove wax from fabrics, scrape off excess and run boiling water through the material.
- Remove wax from holders by running hot water over them.
- Candles refrigerated before use will burn more slowly and evenly.
- Extinguish candles when they get within 2 inches of the bottom.

Walk safely in traffic

Now that spring is here and walking is more manageable in milder weather, here are some reminders about walking safely along busy streets:

- Stay on the sidewalk and crosswalks. If you can't avoid walking on roads with no crosswalks or sidewalks, walk facing traffic.

- Cross at intersections. Most people are hit by cars when they cross the road at places other than intersections. Make sure you stop at the curb. This signals to drivers that you intend to cross.

- Stay out of the driver's blind spot. Make eye contact with drivers when you cross busy streets.
