!!HUGE WOW!!

Over 160 residents and guests turned out for the annual Chicken Dinner which was held on Feb. 8th. Apple pie and ice cream topped off a feast of chicken, potato salad, bread, butter and cole slaw!! Many thanks to Mary-Jane and Charlie Preble for organizing this event and to the many volunteers, who helped with tickets, prep work, setup and clean up. This ever popular event was a tremendous success and was enjoyed by all.

Spring Fling – Saturday March 28th

Games, Food, Fun, and Laughter all make up the special day known as Spring Fling. Many of the residents of Colonial Village will soon be returning to their summer homes and so this day is designed to be enjoyed by all before leaving friends and neighbors for the season. Games will start at 10:00 am and a catered luncheon, provided by the Social Activity Committee, will require seating at 12:30 pm and lunch will be served at 1pm. Sign-up sheets for this “residents only” luncheon will be posted in the Clubhouse from March 2nd until March 18th only. A ticket will be required for lunch and tickets for residents who have signed-up will be distributed after March 20th.

Vegans

Is veganism in the United States on the rise? Although the Indiana Daily Student website reports that only 3% of Americans identify as vegan, there's evidence that it's becoming more and more mainstream. A Harris Poll survey found that one in five Americans at least sometimes eat vegan when dining out, and data from Impossible Foods shows that more than 50% of millennials and Gen Z members eat plant-based meat at least once a month, compared with one in five baby boomers.

Studies suggest that the slow rise of veganism is linked to concerns about the environment, a desire to address animal welfare, and overall health—although nutritionists point out that meatless burgers aren't necessarily healthier than beef because they include more salt and saturated fat.

Temperatures are falling—in your body

Most people think the average body temperature for humans is 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit. However, as the HealthDay website points out, that's not quite the case. In fact, it seems to be going down.

The 98.6 degrees standard was established in 1851. A recent study of 25,000 British citizens, though, marked the average as 97.9. Another study of more than 677,000 temperature measurements recorded in the United States between 1862 and 2017 found that the average body temperature of men born since 2000 is 1.1 degree lower than in men born in the early 19th century. Similarly, body temperatures for women born in the 2000s were, on average, about 0.6 degrees below that of women born in the 1890s. That adds up to a decrease of 0.05 degrees every decade since the 1800s.

Scientists speculate that improved health care and hygiene over time may have produced a reduction in the average metabolic rate, leading to an overall decline in inflammation, which tends to increase one's body temperature

"If you wait until you find something to speak up for, something that you're passionate about that concerns you and attacks your own beliefs, then eventually, when the day finally arrives, you might also find that you have forgotten how to speak."

Must love pets

There’s nothing more magical than the moment you lock eyes with a shelter dog or cat and realize you’ve found a soulmate. Pets teach us about responsibility and unconditional love and bring us years of pure joy and happiness. That’s why March is all about honoring our beloved animal companions.

On March 1 we celebrate National Pig Day, because they are cute and smart and make pretty darn good pets. If you need something to daydream about, March 3 is If Pets Had Thumbs Day—a time to imagine all the ways your pet could prove to be your bestie if they had opposable digits. If you don’t have a pet but are looking to adopt one, National Puppy Day/Cuddly Kitten Day is March 23. Because their fierce independence can lead some to take a hands-off approach with care, March 28 is Respect Your Cat Day. (There’s a rumor that felines around the globe, both feral and domestic, united to create this observance.)

No matter what kind of pet you have, show them a little extra love this spring.

What’s in a pet name?

According to Rover.com, these are the most popular names for our fur babies:

Top 10 Female Pet Names	Top 10 Male Pet Names	Top 10 Names Inspired by Superheroes
Bella Luna Lucy Daisy Lily Zoe Lola Molly Sadie Bailey	Max Charlie Cooper Buddy Rocky Milo Jack Bear Duke Teddy	Harley Loki Thor Flash May Drax Ronan Valkyrie Mary Jane Stan

Calm your fears about airline travel

Flying may be the safest way to travel, but getting on an airplane still makes many people nervous. If you're one of them, remember these basic tips for ensuring a calm, safe flight:

- Fly nonstop when possible. Crashes and accidents are rare, but they're most likely to occur during takeoffs and landings. Look for nonstop flights (remember that direct flights aren't necessarily nonstop, even though you may not change planes).

- Keep your seatbelt fastened. Yeah, you know this already, but it's still important advice. Sudden turbulence can cause an injury, even when you're sitting in your seat, if you're not buckled in.

- Know your exits. If you have to evacuate quickly (and evacuations, along with the deployment of emergency oxygen, are the most common emergency situations you're likely to encounter, although most of the time they're preventative measures), you don't want to waste time. Knowing the location of the nearest exit is an excellent precaution.

- Keep your children safe. When traveling with a baby or toddler, a child restraint system like a car seat is a must. Check the labels to make sure it's certified for use on aircraft. Measure the width of your car seat before boarding: If it's 16 inches or less, it should fit into any airline seat.

- Don't obsess over finding the safest seat. Though you may want to be closest to the emergency exit, the fact is that no one seat is safer than any other on an airplane. For example, in some emergencies passengers are better off remaining in their seats—wherever they are—than trying to scramble off the plane.

Do one thing every day that scares you.

Welcome to an alternative reality

Fans of the late science fiction writer Robert A. Heinlein have something to be happy about this month. A previously unpublished manuscript will be released in March. The Pursuit of Pankera is an alternative take on the story of parallel universes Heinlein wrote about in his novel The Number of the Beast.

According to the publisher, Arc Manor, the novels mirror each other in the beginning but then diverge along different plot and storylines. This project was years in the making, as the book was created from Heinlein's unedited manuscript and handwritten notes. Along with the new novel, a hardcover reprint of The Number of the Beast will be released as well. Apparently, parallel universes do exist.

It was the worst of times

In March of 1918 the first reports of a flu outbreak began to sweep across the U.S. In a year's time this influenza pandemic had traveled around the globe infecting more than a third of the world population and claiming the lives of 50 million people.

This March, as the flu season continues to linger, let's do what we can to prevent the transmission of this viral threat.

- If you're sick, stay home—and get better.
- Cover your mouth with a tissue or the inside of your elbow when you sneeze or cough.
- • Wash your hands with soap and water, frequently, throughout the day.
- Disinfect surfaces like door handles, landline phones, and countertops that are touched by many people.

An email without clarity is like an annoying mime. Just say what you want or get out of the way.

— Jordie Van Rijn
