Phone Numbers and Addresses

Hello everyone and welcome to a little bit of Paradise.
My name is Dennis, and I along with a lot of help from my wife Mary, try to keep up a current directory for the residents here at Harbor Lights. Your help can make it a lot easier for us to produce a directory that is as accurate as possible at the time of printing. If you are new to the park or have had a change of address or phone number please, simply fill out the form on this page. You can then drop the form off at our home at 9126 48 Terrace N. or give the form to Mary or myself at one of the social meetings.

By now the 2019/2020 directory has been printed. If you haven't received one, we will have them at the social meetings, or you can drop by and pick one up at our home. If any of your information in it is incorrect and you would like it corrected for the 2020/2021 issue, please use this form as well and we will update our file for the 2020/2021 edition.

Harbor Lights Change of Phone Number and/or Address

This information will be used for the annual resident directory.
If your address or phone number has changed please fill out the requested information and forward to Dennis at 9126 48th Terrace N.

"...I am so happy with my new windows...I'd like to commend your work crew. Earbie and Larry were fantastic! I couldn't believe the clean-up EVERYDAY! ## Playing with gusto

What could you achieve if you didn't place any limitations on yourself? Jazz pianist Art Tatum — called “the eighth wonder of the world” by Count Basie—is a perfect example of a man who knew no boundaries.

Though blind, Tatum expressed an interest in the piano as a youngster. He listened to the musical stylings of Fats Waller and Lee Sims on the radio for hours, hoping that someday he would be able to perform as well as they did. Of course, that meant he'd have to learn to play, but unfortunately, like many families in the 1920s, his had few resources to spend on music lessons. As Tatum neared adolescence, he devised his own method for learning the instrument.

He persuaded friends to escort him to a local honky-tonk, where he was given permission to sit at the player piano. As the music played, Tatum kept his fingers hovering lightly over the falling keys, feeling his way through the songs. He practiced late into the night, as often as he could—in spite of his age, his schoolwork, and his part-time job. Learning to play piano in this manner was difficult, but not just because he was blind.

What Tatum didn't realize was that player piano rolls of that era were the result of two pianists playing together. He was learning to play with two hands what normally took four. As a result, he developed an incredible dexterity that enabled him to master the piano.

Art Tatum's strong will overshadowed any real or imagined challenges that could have prevented him from learning to play the piano. At the age of 17, Tatum began playing professionally in a career that spanned decades. What began as a desire to sound like Fats Waller developed into a four-handed playing style that would astonish Waller and fellow musicians throughout the 20th century.

It's not easy to be a pioneer—but oh, is it fascinating!

Chocolate may be the perfect cough medicine

Good news if you've got a cough you can't get rid of—especially if you're a chocolate lover. The Shape magazine website reports that an influential authority on respiratory medicine believes chocolate can do a great job of soothing coughs because it forms a protective coating inside your throat that shields the nerve endings that make you cough. Melted chocolate's viscosity permits a natural ingredient to defend those nerve endings and help them calm down.

The expert notes that drinking hot chocolate won't have the same cough-soothing effect because it's too diluted to have a long-lasting effect on throat nerves. You're better off sucking on a piece of chocolate and letting it melt down slowly to coat your throat.

Penicillin allergy may be less common than thought

Many people are allergic to penicillin—or think they are. According to the Medical News Today website, as much as 10% of the U.S. population reports being allergic to the antibiotic, but as much as 90% may have outgrown the allergy, or never even been allergic in the first place.

One study of 52 patients who tested negative for the allergy found that 29% had a penicillin allergy label in their medical records, and 24% had a similar label in the pharmaceutical records. A reaction to the antibiotic from years ago, then, can still show up on one's medical records even though it's no longer accurate.

Doctors recommend being tested by an allergist to confirm their sensitivity to it.

Your health is what you make of it. Everything you do and think either adds to the vitality, energy, and spirit you possess or takes away from it.

—Ann Wigmore

Heavy sigh, eye roll

According to the “Workfriend” advice column in The New York Times, replying to an email or text with “OK” is interpreted by the younger generations (Z and millennials) as a passive-aggressive way of telling someone to drop dead.

Seriously.
Instead of using “OK,” you should write “kk” or simply “K.”

However, there is another alternative preferred by those of us with common sense who don’t defer to manufactured grammar rules of unknown origin: You can simply say what you mean and mean what you say and try not to be mean about it, OK?

Now that’s cold

You’re shut in due to the snow and cold weather, and your cousin in northern Florida calls to complain about the chilly 50-degree temps and having to wear a sweater. Not to make light of their discomfort, but you might suggest they invest in fleece pajamas; then share this list of some of the coldest cities in the U.S.:

Place	Coldest average winter temperature (Fahrenheit)	Average number of days below freezing
Deadhorse, Alaska	-23.1	291.9
Crested Butte, Colorado	-7.6	265.7
Stanley, Idaho	-1.8	291.6
Allagash, Maine	-7.6	208.1
Embarrass, Minnesota	-6.2	227.2
Wisdom, Montana	1	277.2
Belcourt, North Dakota	-6.2	205.2
Coalville, Utah	4.7	258.4
Sutton, Vermont	-1	204.8
Bondurant, Wyoming	-3.1	264.9

Pride in America on the decline

Are you proud to be an American? Seventy percent of American adults say they are, in a Gallup survey from July 4, 2019, but only 45% describe themselves as “extremely” proud of the fact, the second year in a row that figure has fallen below 50% since Gallup started conducting the survey in 2001.

The highest figures came after the 9/11 terrorist attacks. From 2002 through 2004, 69% of Americans declared themselves to be proud of their country, and 70% were extremely proud. However, fewer than 60% have expressed extreme pride since 2005, at the beginning of President George W. Bush’s second term.

The decline in national pride is most apparent among Democrats, with only 22% expressing extreme pride in the latest poll. Among Republicans, on the other hand, 76% say they are extremely proud to be an American. Gallup points out that during the Obama administration, the proportion of Republicans reporting extreme pride never fell below 68%.

Wellness and travel—an elusive goal?

Americans are embracing wellness as a trend, and it extends to their vacation planning. The Luxury Daily website reports on a Foresight Factory survey that found 77% of consumers take steps to be healthier every day, whether it’s making better dietary decisions, exercising more, or managing their stress. Similarly, a YouGov study found that 56% of affluent travelers say that health is their top goal for 2020.

To do this, travelers are searching for experiences related to wellness—41% in the Foresight Factory survey say they travel to relax, and 22% want to get closer to nature.

On the other hand, travel can get in the way of wellness efforts. An On Call International survey of business travelers found 54% are less likely to exercise while traveling, and 44% admit to unhealthy eating.
