To all Residents, Friends, and Vendors

Lasereno2@tampabay.rr.com

In an ongoing effort to upgrade Services, Equipment and Infrastructure at Lake Seminole Resort, there has been a new provider and phone system installed. Anyone wanting to contact the Office/Administration via e-mail, please use lasereno2@tampabay.rr.com for all future communications via the internet. The old e-mail address is no longer in service. We thank you in advance for helping out with the conversion over to the new e-mail system by noting in your phone books the new e-mail address.

Thanksgiving Dinner

Mandy Bruce

Thanksgiving is already upon us and we have a lot to be thankful for at LSR. Thanksgiving is Thursday, November 27, 2014. I will be heading the Thanksgiving dinner this year, so, I'm looking for volunteers, especially those who have done Thanksgiving in the past, to make it a special dinner for our attending residents. A sign-up sheet will be in the clubhouse for volunteers and another sign-up sheet for attendees. Thanks in advance for your support.

Gardening

Alice & Bobby Jarvis

We have been doing a lot of trimming around our community. The growth has been rapid with all the rain and sunshine. Looking forward to more volunteers to help as we continue to keep our resort looking nice. We are getting new home owners and they all say they like the way LSR looks with the flowers and plants. It is only one part that keeps people loving our community.

Monday Morning Coffee

Dan & Annamarie Blackburn

Not much different to report. As people return we will see things changing with Mc's and the amount of coffee we have to make. The hall is ready with all the long tables set up, as we only had round tables in the summer. Thanks to all that helped. A big thanks to our summer people as hostess Phyllis Allen, Carolyn Fertig, Dan and Annamarie Blackburn and Pam Nadeau now that she has returned. Mc's were Nelson Slansky, Barbara Fix, Fred Murray and Alice Jarvis. Thank you to Jim Henry for making the run to pick up the donuts.

November Is...

National Epilepsy Awareness Month. Epilepsy, characterized by recurrent, unprovoked seizures, affects about 2 million people in the United States. Delayed recognition of these seizures and inadequate treatment increase the risk for additional seizures, disability, decreased quality of life, and, in rare instances, death.

National Novel Writing Month. You can write a novel in only a month, along with the 600,000+ people who've already done so. Go to www.nanowrimo.org for advice, support, and a network of fellow authors working diligently on the next Great American (or any other nationality) Novel.

National Runaway Prevention Month. A campaign by the National Network for Youth to increase public awareness of the issues facing runaways and to educate the public about the solutions, and about the role they can play in preventing youth from running away.

Manatee Awareness Month. The manatee is the official marine mammal of Florida, a gentle, slow-moving animal protected by the Federal Endangered Species Act as well as Florida state law. But manatees face the risk of extinction due to human activity, including the loss of their warm water winter habitat. For more information, go to the Save the Manatee Club website at www.savethemanatee.org.

Whether we have it all or we have nothing, we are all faced with the same obstacles: sadness, loss, illness, dying and death. If we are to strive as human beings to gain more wisdom, more kindness and more compassion, we must have the intention to grow as a lotus and open each petal one by one.

—Goldie Hawn

Americans wary of high tech

We may love our smartphones and tablet computers, but that doesn't mean Americans have embraced all forms of technology. A national survey by the Pew Research Center and Smithsonian magazine explored our attitudes toward several different kinds of cutting-edge technology. The results? Mixed.

News flash: Superman violates the laws of physics

We all know that the comic book hero Superman gets his powers from the yellow of our sun; after all, his home planet of Krypton had a red sun (before the world was destroyed). But how much energy would he really need to perform his feats of derring-do?

Two University of Leicester students examined that question in a paper for the Journal of Physics Special Topics. Estimating the area of his body, the students determined that Superman would probably be able to absorb some 1,096 joules of energy per second from our sun. They then calculated that to fly for eight hours at an altitude of 30 kilometers, our hero would require 207 billion joules to overcome drag forces and gravity. That means Superman's solar efficiency would have to reach over 600,000 percent (Earth's best solar cells have a 44.7 percent efficiency), which indicates that he would use more energy flying "up, up, and away!" than he could get from the sun—a violation of the laws of physics (specifically, the law of conservation of energy).

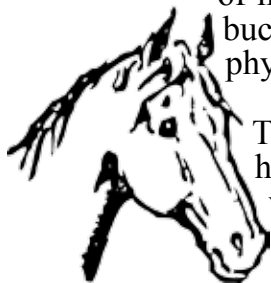

The students theorize that Superman must have either an alternate energy source or the ability to store up energy for future flights. Others might speculate that these guys have way too much time on their hands.

Horses can't talk, but they do communicate—with each other

No one can talk to a horse, of course (as the theme song for TV's Mr. Ed tells us), but horses can communicate with each other. Not by talking, but with their eyes and ears.

Scientists at the University of Sussex have observed that ear position is an important visual signal that horses see and respond to. In a study, they posted life-sized photographs of horses between two feeding buckets. The photo would show which bucket the horse was watching. As part of the test, the scientists blocked physical cues from the pictures, particularly views of the eyes and ears.

Their findings indicated that horses depend on the orientation of other horses' heads to locate food, an ability they lose when those cues aren't visible. The results seem to dispute the common theory that animals whose eyes are on the sides of their heads can't pick up information based on the direction of each other's heads.
