"...I am so happy with my new windows...I'd like to commend your work crew. Earbie and Larry were fantastic! I couldn't believe the clean-up EVERYDAY! The whole job took just a week even with all the rain delays. I would and WILL highly recommend your company to my friends and neighbors. Of course I won't need to say a word - the house is doing all the talking! Thank you so much for my beautiful new house."

Carol Zapiecki, Clearwater, FL

"Just a short note to express my appreciation for the work done on my mobile home. The crews that worked here...were gentlemen at all times, efficient, knowledgeable and prompt. Ancient ‘lunch box’ found in Alps

Archeologists have discovered a 3,500-year-old wooden “lunch box” high in the Swiss Alps, according to Fox News. Although objects made of wood or leather rarely survive intact over long periods of time, similar finds have been made in the Alps, including 5,300-year-old mummified remains of Otzi the Iceman, which were found in two containers made of birch bark.

The box was discovered in melting ice near the top of a mountain. A chemical analysis showed that its contents contained traces of grains—possibly wheat and rye—that could have been the ingredients in a porridge. The findings could help scientists explore where and how cereals spread across ancient Europe to become an important food crop.

New moon around a distant star

Astronomers have discovered thousands of exoplanets—worlds outside our solar system—but now many believe they’ve discovered the first moon circling another planet around another star, according to the BBC News website.

NASA’s Kepler Space Telescope searches for exoplanets by looking for slight dips in a star’s brightness when a planet crosses in front of it. Hunting for exomoons means looking for a dimming of starlight before and after a planet produces its drop in the light. One promising signal was observed during three such transits around a star some 4,000 lightyears from Earth. Dubbed Kepler 1625b, the moon looks to be approximately the size of the planet Neptune, orbiting a planet the size of Jupiter but with 10 times Jupiter’s mass.

Scientists will look for evidence from the Hubble Space Telescope to confirm the findings.

The most beautiful thing we can experience is the mysterious. It is the source of all true art and science.

—Albert Einstein

Overcome the power of negative thinking

Being creative calls for positive thinking, but optimism isn't always easy. Negative thoughts can creep into your mind when you least expect them. The trick isn't to fight them, but to manage them so they don't paralyze you. Here's what to do:

- Identify the triggers. When you have a negative thought, stop and ask yourself what's bringing it on. You may be tired or stressed out, or you may be affected by someone else's perspective. If you can locate the cause, the thought itself won't have as much power over you.

- Focus on the now. Worrying about the past or the future isn't productive. When you start chastising yourself for prior mistakes or seeing disaster around every corner, stop and take a breath. Ask yourself what you can do at that moment to succeed. Giving yourself something to do will distract you from destructive thoughts.

- Replace the negative. If you find yourself plagued by a recurrent worry, train yourself to think of something else. Memorize a short poem, phrase, or meditation that you can repeat to yourself when you have negative thoughts. Your conscious mind can concentrate on only one thought at a time, and driving the negativity away will free you up to move forward again.

Get past the obstacles when you paint

Just because you're not Picasso doesn't mean you can't find satisfaction and enjoyment in art. A course in drawing or painting can get you started, but when you're searching for ideas or subjects to work on, consider some of these approaches:

- Seek inspiration. Spend time looking at art—paintings, sculpture, drawings—for ideas. Listen to music to stimulate your creative juices.

- Start small. If you're hesitant, or blocked, don't tackle a big art project. Start with something small and easy. Work on one section of your painting, and don't think about the rest of the project. You'll make progress and your success may give you the momentum you need to continue.

- Switch things around. If you usually paint or draw horizontally, switch to vertical. Instead of painting what you see, paint what you feel. If you draw with your right hand, try switching to your left. A small change can make a big difference.

- Try an exercise. Find inspiration in a common phrase such as, "Once in a blue moon." Draw or paint your interpretation of that saying. What kind of rare occurrence springs to your mind? How would the world look under blue moonlight? Choose other clichés and catchphrases to illustrate, and you'll keep your perceptions sharper.

Help for Severe Aortic Stenosis

Severe aortic stenosis is a narrowed aortic heart valve that doesn't open and close properly, reducing blood flow to the rest of the body.

Morton Plant Hospital is now enrolling eligible patients in the Medtronic Evolut R low-risk trial, which investigates the safety and effectiveness of a transcatheter aortic valve replacement (TAVR) system in patients with severe aortic stenosis who are at a low surgical mortality risk. TAVR is a minimally invasive alternative to open-heart surgery used to treat failing aortic heart valves in patients with severe aortic stenosis. Morton Plant Hospital was chosen as the first hospital in Tampa Bay to offer the TAVR procedure for patients with severe aortic stenosis who were at an intermediate or high surgical mortality risk. Our team has completed more than 700 TAVR procedures over the last five years.

To see if you or a loved one with severe aortic stenosis may be eligible for this trial, or for more information on the trial, call the Center for Advanced Valve and Structural Heart Care at Morton Plant Hospital at (855) 44-VALVE (855-448-2583) or visit MortonPlantValveTrial.org.

Factors for avoiding dementia

Physicians estimate that cases of Alzheimer's disease and dementia could reach 141 million people by 2050, but a new study reported in The Lancet says that one-third of such cases could be prevented through better lifestyle management, including:

- Getting an education (staying in school until over age 15)
- Reducing high blood pressure, obesity, and diabetes
- Avoiding or treating hearing loss in mid-life
- Not smoking
- Physical exercise
- Reducing depression and social isolation later in life.

Take good care of your bicycle helmet

Riding a bike is good exercise, but you must take care of your helmet if you want to protect your head in case of an accident. Consumer Reports offers this advice:

- Find the right fit. Your helmet should be snug enough to fit your head but not uncomfortably tight.

- Store it appropriately. Keep it somewhere cool and dry in your house or garage. Don't leave it in your car—the heat could degrade the foam or compromise the helmet's structure.

- Keep it clean. Use soap and water, not harsh detergents like ammonia or bleach, which can also damage a helmet's integrity.

- Watch for dents. Even a small dent can mean your helmet will offer less protection in a crash.

- Replace after an impact. Even if the damage seems minimal, get a new helmet after any crash.

The hardest arithmetic to master is that which enables us to count our blessings.

Driverless cars coming to a street near you?

Driverless cars can't wait for self-driving cars, according to a survey by Bosch Mobility Solutions. Out of 1,000 U.S.-based new car buyers 18 years or older, 52 percent said they expect to own a self-driving vehicle within the next 10 years. Only 14 percent said they'd never buy a self-driving car, and 14 percent were undecided.

Although 72 percent of survey participants signaled worries about lack of control in a vehicle they don't drive themselves, 61 percent said they believe self-driving cars could lead to a decrease in traffic accidents, and 55 percent highlighted more free time and less stress as a benefit to driverless cars.

Why kids stay home longer

It's not just a stereotype: More and more young Americans are living with their parents, the U.S. Census Bureau reports. According to a recent study, one in three Americans age 18-34 were living in their parents' home in 2015—some 24 million people. In 1975, the figure was closer to one in five.

One reason: Young people are delaying marriage longer than their older counterparts did. Eighty percent of Americans were married by age 30 in 1975, but nowadays that 80 percent figure isn't reached until age 45.

Younger Americans are also dealing with high student loan debt, which makes staying at home a convenient way for them to pay bills and save to rent an apartment or buy a house.

Coffee + nap = more energy

Want to take a nap that will leave you refreshed and ready to go again? Try drinking a cup of coffee first.

It sounds counterintuitive, but that's the advice from the Health.com website. The reason why it works: The caffeine in a cup of coffee takes about 30 minutes to kick in. After a 30-minute nap, you'll wake up just as the caffeine takes effect.

Research backs the idea up. In 1997 the journal Psychophysiology reported that sleepy adults who drank 200 mg of caffeine (twice the amount in 8 ounces of brewed coffee) and then took a short nap performed better on a simulated driving test than people who got only the caffeine.

Keep your naps short—15-30 minutes—and take them at least six hours before your regular bedtime so the caffeine doesn't keep you up at night. If you're sensitive to caffeine, try green tea instead.

If you are what you eat . . .

This information isn't for the squeamish, but you might want to know it anyway. According to an article on the Huffington Post website, insects are so ubiquitous that the FDA allows a certain amount of bugs and insect fragments in the food we eat. Insect control organization Terro released data on just how much you might be eating in a year:

• Coffee beans	136,080 (fragments)
• Wheat flour	91,650 (fragments)
• Macaroni/noodle products	7,031 (fragments)
• Chocolate	5,988 (fragments)

Relax with a nice warm bath

What's more relaxing than a long hot bath? Jacuzzi Luxury Bath commissioned a survey to explore Americans' bathing habits, and found that 38 percent of us take baths at least once a week. Frequent bathers take an average of 3.3 baths weekly for an average of 28 minutes. Among other results:

- Timing. The most popular times for taking a bath are weekend evenings and Monday mornings.
- Demographics. Bathing breaks down 50-50 between men and women. Younger people are more likely to be frequent bathers: 48 percent of people 25-44 said they bathe on a regular basis.
- Benefits. Women tend to take baths because it helps them relax, while men feel baths lead to better mental acuity. Bathers 18-44 said baths make them feel more alert.
- Exercise. Baths are popular for relieving soreness and fatigue caused by exercise. Forty-three percent of runner or joggers take a bath to recover after their workout, along with 34 percent who take exercise classes and 33 percent of weightlifters, followed by basketball players, bikers, and swimmers.

One minute a day may lead to stronger bones

Keeping your bones in good shape is vital to your health as you grow older, especially for women. Research reported on the Medical News Today website suggests that women may be able to keep their bones strong by running just one minute a day.

Examining data from more than 2,500 women, researchers found that women who participated in high-intensity, weight-bearing physical activity like running 60-120 seconds a day had 4 percent better bone health than women who took part in less than a minute of physical activity. Women who performed more than two minutes of exercise had 6 percent better bone health.

The researchers cautioned, though, that they can't be sure whether high-intensity exercise leads to better bone health, or whether people with better bone health tend to exercise more.

New findings about the solar system intrigue scientists

Our solar system is full of interesting places—maybe not to live or even visit, but locations where life might flourish under the right conditions, or may once have been present. Two recent examples from the Science News website:

• Life on Titan? Scientists have discovered that the atmosphere of Saturn's moon Titan contains vinyl cyanide—a molecule that forms membrane-like structures and could support life. Computer simulations suggest the molecule is capable of forming flexible bubbles known as azotosomes, that could serve as an outer shell “protecting” genetic material from biochemical reactions in the moon's frigid methane seas. No one knows whether azotosomes actually exist on Titan, though. A probe would have to check out the seas to detect them.

• Water on Venus? With a surface temperature of 460 degrees, Venus is too hot to support water or life as we know it, but scientists speculate it might not always have been so inhospitable. The second planet's slow rotation—116 Earth days for a single Venusian day—might have led to a gradual cloud buildup in its atmosphere some 750 million years ago, bringing surface temperatures down to approximately 15 degrees Celsius—enough for the formation of a shallow ocean. What happened to the oceans, or whether they even existed, isn't clear. Scientists speculate they may have boiled away or been absorbed into the planet's interior.

Moo! Cows may be smarter than you think

What's the smartest animal you can think of? Dolphins and chimpanzees may spring to mind quickly, but don't neglect one often-overlooked farm animal: the cow.

College students at the University of Sydney (as reported by the Huffington Post) conducted experiments with dairy cows and found that our bovine friends are capable of quickly mastering a maze to find food, and thus may possess better problem-solving skills than previously known.

The cows were tested in a T-shaped maze similar to those used with mice and rats. They learned to follow a sound through the maze to get to their food, with one of them reaching its goals within the first 20 seconds of the test.

The results suggest that cattle farmers could train cows to obey specific sound signals to come in for milking, producing greater efficiency on dairy farms.

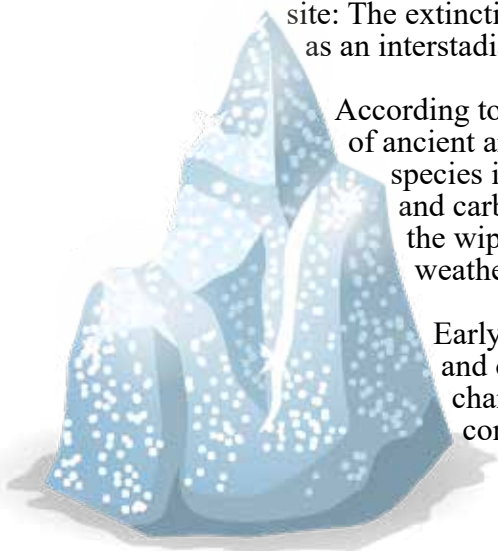

Global warming, not Ice Age, may have killed mammoths

Giant woolly mammoths roamed the Earth until about 11,000 years ago, when they abruptly went extinct. For years, scientists theorized that they were killed by the cold temperatures of the last Ice Age. Now some believe the explanation is just the opposite: The extinction event was caused by a sudden warming event known as an interstadial.

According to research published in the journal Science, DNA studies of ancient animals point to the sudden extinction of many large species in past ages. As more DNA from fossils became available, and carbon dating methods improved, scientists discovered that the wipeouts didn't correspond to the rise of glaciers and cold weather, but rather to periods of rapid global warming.

Early humans also contributed to the demise of the mammoths and other large beasts, but the evidence suggests that climate change was a major factor in their extinction—raising concerns about the future of our present environment.
