JOYFUL NEW YEAR

What is the FMO?

The Federation of Manufactured Home Owners of Florida. The Federation's purpose is to promote its members' general welfare, protect the rights and interests of, and be a consumer advocate for manufactured/mobile homeowners.

Members are current, former, and future manufactured homeowners who care about this lifestyle and hope to make a difference at the state level. FMO's accomplishments are numerous and include the creation of Florida Statute 723, "The Florida Mobile Home Act", which safeguards your rights as homeowners in Florida. Most recently they've successfully lobbied for the extension of The Mobile Home Tie-Down Program for 10 more years. They owe all their success to the dedicated members.

If you would like more information you may contact Colleen Gartner, District 2 President at 484-880-6816 ergartner@icloud.com . or check out their website at <https://www.fmo.org/>.

FREE HEALTHCARE – CLEARWATER FREE CLINIC

Since 1977, the Clearwater Free Clinic has provided problem-oriented healthcare to low income, uninsured residents of upper Pinellas County by means of office visits, medications, lab work, x-rays and specialty referrals. The Clinic, a volunteer driven non-profit, non-government medical facility, provides primary healthcare at no cost to those who do not qualify for government assistance, and who cannot afford private medical care. They are located at 1218 Court St., Clearwater – 727-447-3041

The Mysterious Gift Under the Tree

One Christmas Eve, a family gathered around the tree, finishing up the last of the cocoa and carols. As the children were sent off to bed, the parents noticed a small, unmarked gift tucked deep behind the tree. Neither of them had placed it there. Curious, they opened it to find a handmade ornament with the words: “Believe in the magic.” Inside was a note from their late grandmother, written years before she passed, thanking them for keeping the family traditions alive. She had hidden the gift during her last Christmas with them, hoping it would be found when they needed it most. That year, the family had been struggling with grief, and the unexpected message brought comfort and tears—reminding them that love endures, even after loss.

The Christmas Truce of 1914

During World War I, on Christmas Eve 1914, something extraordinary happened. British and German soldiers, entrenched in bitter combat, spontaneously ceased fire. Soldiers from both sides emerged from their trenches, met in no man's land, and exchanged greetings, food, and even played a game of football. They sang carols together and buried their dead with dignity. Though brief, the truce was a powerful reminder of shared humanity—even in the darkest of times. It remains one of the most poignant examples of peace breaking through conflict, if only for a day.

The Turkey That Got Away

One Christmas, a family decided to go all out and buy a fresh turkey from a local farm instead of the usual frozen one. The dad was in charge of picking it up, and he proudly brought home a massive bird. But when it came time to cook it, the oven door wouldn't close—it was too big.

So, they tried trimming it. Still too big. Then they tried rotating it. Still no luck. Eventually, they gave up and decided to cook it on the grill outside. But halfway through, it started raining—hard. The dad, determined not to let Christmas dinner be ruined, stood outside with an umbrella, flipping the turkey like a warrior defending his feast.

Hours later, they finally brought it in, only to discover... it was still raw in the middle. They ended up eating side dishes and pie for dinner, and the turkey became the next day's project. The family now jokes that the turkey was so big it needed its own zip code—and they've gone back to frozen ever since.

Writer's block? Vanquish it with these tips

Writers of all kinds sometimes fall prey to blocks. Whether you're writing a novel, a poem, or a business article, these tips can help you get past those blocks and get back on track:

- Start early. You have more willpower and energy in the morning, so use it to your advantage. You'll also have fewer interruptions and distractions while other people are just pouring their first cup of coffee, and you'll be able to put off less-important tasks for when you have the time to devote to them.
- Select a goal. Challenge yourself to write 5,000 words, work for two hours straight, finish a chapter, or write half your article before you move on. This gives you something concrete to strive for.
- Warm up. Spend a few minutes describing something around you, recreating a conversation from yesterday, writing down a dream, or just recording random thought as they come into your head. The practice of writing something—anything—will help get your mind in gear.
- Leave it unfinished. Some writers make a habit of stopping in the middle of a sentence so they have a natural starting point the next morning. If that doesn't work for you, try leaving what you're working on incomplete once you've reached your daily goal. You'll find it easier to continue when you have a natural jumping-off point.
- Don't push yourself. Sometimes the only thing to do is step away from the keyboard for a while. Let your mind wander without getting lost in another subject. After a few minutes (or hours) you'll be able to return with a fresh perspective.

Quotes

To invent, you need a good imagination and a pile of junk.
—Thomas Edison

Our imagination is stretched to the utmost, not, as in fiction, to imagine things which are not really there, but just to comprehend those things which are there.

—Richard Feynman

Do not be embarrassed by your failures. Learn from them, and start again.

—Richard Branson

You've got to get up every morning with determination if you're going to go to bed with satisfaction.

—George Lorimer

Ask the right questions

Asking questions is the key to creative thinking, but you've got to ask the right kinds of questions. Here are some ideas for generating questions that get results:

- Write variations of the same question. Without overthinking it or second-guessing yourself, quickly write at least 10 variations of the question you're exploring. "How can we reduce expenses?" could become, "How can I persuade people to reduce expenses?" and "Where can we easily cut expenses?" and so forth. Each iteration will produce a new and different idea.
- Analyze everything. Don't go through life on autopilot. Take a hard look at little annoyances, for example, and try to find ways to eliminate them—"How can I stop getting interrupted for nonessential problems?" for example. Examine the tools that help you every day and look for ways to maximize them: "How can I get more out of all the applications on my computer?"
- Question your first solution. Maybe you've got an answer to your question, but don't stop there. Reinterpret it. For example, look for ways your solution could be improved, misused, or used to solve other problems. This helps you look past your assumptions and consider new perspectives.

Marvin Gaye's serendipitous accidents

One of singer/songwriter Marvin Gaye's most successful albums was What's Going On. Gaye worked hard on the album, but some of its most original moments came from mistakes. As an article of the LifeHacker website relates:

"Interestingly, two of the most singular aspects of What's Going On that were extended to the album began as errors. The opening alto-sax solo by Eli Fontaine actually was a warm-up phrase for an overdub that Gaye decided to keep. And Gaye's harmonized duets with himself occurred when Ken Sands, the engineer, accidentally played back two of his vocal versions on one mono tape."

Accidents can sometime produce surprising results.

The Great Eggnog Explosion

At an office Christmas party, one enthusiastic employee decided to make homemade eggnog to impress everyone. He brought in a giant glass punch bowl filled to the brim, complete with nutmeg sprinkles and cinnamon sticks. It looked amazing.

But what he didn't realize was that the bowl was sitting directly under the heat vent.

As the party went on, the eggnog slowly warmed up... and fermented. By the time people started ladling it into cups, it had developed a surprisingly fizzy texture. One brave soul took a sip and immediately spat it out, yelling, "It's ALIVE!"

Moments later, the bowl cracked from the heat, sending a tidal wave of eggnog across the table, soaking cookies, gifts, and one unfortunate intern's laptop. The smell lingered for days, and the punch bowl was never seen again.

The moral? Never mix dairy, heat, and ambition.

The Cat vs. The Christmas Tree

One family had a beautiful, towering Christmas tree decorated with delicate glass ornaments, shimmering tinsel, and twinkling lights. It was their pride and joy—until their cat, Mittens, decided it was her personal jungle gym.

On the first night, they heard a crash and found Mittens halfway up the tree, dangling from a branch like a furry ornament. She had knocked off several baubles and was batting at the star like it owed her money.

They tried everything: citrus spray, aluminum foil around the base, even a motion-activated air puffer. Nothing worked. Every night, Mittens launched a stealth attack. One morning, they woke up to find the entire tree tipped over, ornaments scattered like confetti, and Mittens sitting triumphantly on top of the fallen pine like she'd conquered Everest.

From then on, they decorated only the top half of the tree and left the bottom bare—except for a sign that read: "Mittens' Zone – Enter at Your Own Risk."

When to treat burns at home, and when to head to the ER

Burns can be painful, but you don't necessarily have to go to a hospital to treat them. From the NBC News website, use this checklist to determine whether you (and how) you can treat a burn at home:

When to treat at home:

- You feel pain from the burn.
- The skin turns white when you press it, then turns red again when you stop.
- The burn isn't on your hands, joints, or face.

How to treat at home:

- Remove any hot or burning material from the affected area.
- Wash the area with soap and water.
- Apply an antibiotic ointment to the burn site.
- Wrap the burn site with gauze and secure it with adhesive tape

When to go the hospital:

- You feel little or no pain.
- The burn is deep and your skin is peeling.
- The burn covers your hand, joints, or face.

Check with your doctor when:

- The pain increases or gets more frequent.
- You see signs of infection on the burn site.
- You have any other symptoms.

Rehab after heart attack is often ignored

Approximately 790,000 adults in the United States suffer heart attacks every year, and about 210,000 of them are repeat attacks.

Cardiac rehabilitation is crucial to preventing a second heart attack, but the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention report that only one in three survivors opt to participate in it.

Cardiac rehab includes exercise counseling, lifestyle advice for a healthy heart, and stress-reduction tips, all of which can reduce those chances of a second (or third or fourth) attack. Cardiac rehab also means extended medical supervision after discharge from the hospital, according to the WebMD website.

If you or someone you know has suffered and survived a heart attack, keep in mind that rehab might prolong life and prevent a new crisis.

Fire ants escape Houston flood with their own ‘rafts’

The flooding of Houston in the wake of Hurricane Harvey had many people scrambling to escape in boats, canoes, and makeshift rafts. Humans weren’t the only one searching for dry land, though. Hordes of fire ants made their way to safety on rafts composed of their own bodies.

As described on the Live Science website, fire ants rise from the ground when faced with flooding and hook themselves together, using their ability to trap air pockets in the bodies to float away. The air inside their bodies also provides oxygen for those on the bottom.

Clumps of up to 8,000 fire ants could be seen floating in the water. Rescuers were advised to avoid touching the rafts with their oars or paddles to prevent the ants from climbing up into their craft. Spraying them with soapy water is the best defense.

Early humans didn’t intermix as previously thought

Anthropologists have long speculated that Neanderthals and early modern humans mingled together some 32,000 years ago, with Vindija Cave in Croatia a prime spot for mating. Now, according to the American Association for the Advancement of Science’s website, they’re not so sure.

Earlier carbon dating procedures seem to show that Neanderthals and modern human co-existed in an around the cave. Recently, however, a more detailed form of dating suggests that Neanderthals lived in the area and used the cave more than 40,000 years ago—8,000 years before early modern humans began living in the region.

Scientists developing energy-producing clothes

Someday soon you may be able to charge your smartphone or Fitbit with a simple walk around the block, according to the NBC News website. Scientists at the University of Texas at Dallas are working to develop fabrics using carbon nanotubes, which are hollow and 10,000 times thinner than a human hair. When twisted into coils and stretched, they can produce a minuscule electrical current. One recent test of a tight shirt using the special yarn produced 16 millivolts every time the person wearing it inhaled—not enough to charge a smartphone, but enough, perhaps, to send health information to another location.

Don't make these retirement saving mistakes

Too many people wait too long to start thinking about how much money they will need to finance their retirement. Retirement seems far away when you're in your 20s and 30s, and it's easy to think you'll have plenty of time to worry about saving later. That's one mistake. Here are three more, offered by Chris Heerlein, partner at REAP Financial and author of Money Won't Buy Happiness—But Time to Find It:

- Not participating in a 401(k). Many employers don't offer a 401(k) or similar retirement plan, but if yours does, you should participate. This savings opportunity that can reap great rewards, especially if you start when you're in your 20s and faithfully contribute for decades.
- Saving only in a 401(k). Although contributing to a 401(k) is great, that shouldn't be your only vehicle for saving. If you are a younger saver, you are putting all your money into a bucket you can't touch for 20 or 30 years. When you do withdraw it in retirement, you'll pay taxes because the taxes were deferred. Put some balance in your portfolio with a Roth IRA, a Roth 401(k) or a health savings account. Withdrawing from those Roth funds in retirement won't result in taxes because the taxes were already paid when the money went in the account. HSA money isn't taxed if you withdraw it for qualified medical expenses. After you turn 65, you can withdraw it for any purpose, though you will pay taxes on that withdrawal if not used for a qualified expense.
- Failing to embrace risk. When the 2008 financial crisis hit, plenty of investors lost a substantial portion of their savings. The memory of what happened to them—or to their parents—is still having repercussions. Some people younger than 50 are too conservative with their investments, so their money doesn't grow as it could if they took more risks. If you're between the ages of 20 and 50, though, don't panic. Time is on your side. If you suffer a loss, you more than likely have plenty of years to recover before you retire.

Stretch your bonus dollars

Even a small year-end bonus can go a long way in helping you manage debt. Here are some ways you can make good use of an extra $50:

- Cut your credit card debt. If you put $50 toward a $2,000 credit card balance, you'll cut your payback time by four months if you usually pay a minimum of $40 month. Using the $50 toward the debt can save you $103 in interest (at 16 percent).
- Buy financial management software. Use the $50 to help you manage your money better by buying financial management software like Quicken. It'll help you keep better control of your checking account. The programs also help you to identify other areas where you can save money.
- Pump up your relationships. Buy something nice for your spouse, partner, friends, family or co-workers. Invest in something by thinking that there's more to life than money.

Raising Strong Grandkids

Help your grandchildren to become more resilient by focusing on these three areas:

1. Negative thoughts. If you were ever the last one picked for a team in P.E. or someone whose accomplishments were compared against those of an older sibling or a prodigy neighbor kid, then you'll know firsthand the doubt, dread and lack of confidence that can overtake a young mind. Don't allow your children to fall victim to a spirit of defeat.
2. Encourage them to share their thoughts. Then help them improve their outlook by exploring strategies and solutions that will empower their thinking and inspire a willingness to strive for more.
3. Feelings. Sometimes as parents we're too quick to step in and say, "Don't worry. Everything will work out." Yet this approach doesn't allow your children to recognize and process how they are feeling, nor understand how their feelings can influence behavior.
5. Give youngsters a judgment-free forum for exploring their emotions, and offer insight and constructive feedback for dealing with those emotions.
6. Fears. Confronting adversity helps to develop problem-solving skills and gives us the confidence to make better choices.
7. Don't allow children to give up when times are tough. Encourage kids to face their fears with positive actions and perseverance. They may not always come out on top, but they will be able to hold their heads up knowing they did their best.

Quotes

When trouble comes, it's your family that supports you.
—Guy Lafleur

Family means no one gets left behind or forgotten.

SCAM ALERT

Family Scams

Scammers are good at pretending to be someone that they're not. They try to trick you into thinking a loved one is in trouble.

Once the scammer makes you think they're your grandson and in trouble, they pressure you to quickly send them money. But it's all a scam.

Your family member was never in trouble.

- The scammer will say it's urgent and that you're the only one who can help.
- The scammer might tell you it's important to keep it secret. They don't want you talking to other family members and friends and realizing it's a scam.
- The scammers will play with your emotions. They're counting on you to act quickly to help your family or friend. And they're counting on you to pay without stopping to check out whether there's really an emergency. If you get a call like this, you can be sure this is a scam.

Slow down. Verify.
